

DOWN "OUT" FOREVER.

(Continued from First Page.)

that he would never recover, while his young wife grew hysterical in her agony. The man who had been the cause of the tragedy was now dead, and his body was being carried away to the morgue. The woman who had been the cause of the tragedy was now dead, and her body was being carried away to the morgue.

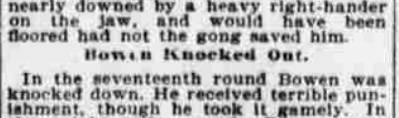

Scene from Bowen's Death.

When finally his death was announced, Bowen was terribly affected and burst into tears, sobbing and moaning with agonized grief. The man who had been the cause of the tragedy was now dead, and his body was being carried away to the morgue. The woman who had been the cause of the tragedy was now dead, and her body was being carried away to the morgue.

Scene from Bowen's Death.

In answer to a question, he said that he did not feel that he had been the cause of the death of the man who had been the cause of the tragedy. The man who had been the cause of the tragedy was now dead, and his body was being carried away to the morgue. The woman who had been the cause of the tragedy was now dead, and her body was being carried away to the morgue.

Scene from Bowen's Death.

The Fatal Blow.
The blow which knocked out Bowen is described thus: Lavigne feinted with his right hand, and as Bowen ducked, his elbow caught Bowen's chin. Bowen straightened up, and as he did so, his head struck the platform with a force which was sufficient to knock him out.

Scene from Bowen's Death.

Lavigne's Record.
George (Kid) Lavigne was born at Bay City, Mich., in 1891. He has fought twenty-four rounds, and has won twenty-three of them. His record is as follows: Young Griffo, eight rounds; George Siddons, seven rounds; and George Siddons, seven rounds.

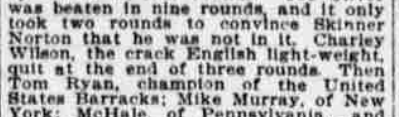

Scene from Bowen's Death.

Andy Bowen was twenty-seven years old. He weighed, when in condition, about 135 pounds. He started fighting when he was sixteen years old, and has won twenty-three of his twenty-four fights. His record is as follows: Young Griffo, eight rounds; George Siddons, seven rounds; and George Siddons, seven rounds.

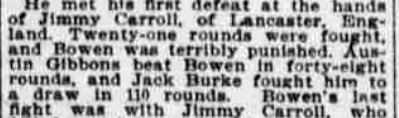

Scene from Bowen's Death.

When the fight was over, Bowen was found lying on the platform, his head resting on his hands. He was dead. The man who had been the cause of the tragedy was now dead, and his body was being carried away to the morgue. The woman who had been the cause of the tragedy was now dead, and her body was being carried away to the morgue.

Scene from Bowen's Death.

No Fading to the Ring.
When the fight was over, Bowen was found lying on the platform, his head resting on his hands. He was dead. The man who had been the cause of the tragedy was now dead, and his body was being carried away to the morgue. The woman who had been the cause of the tragedy was now dead, and her body was being carried away to the morgue.

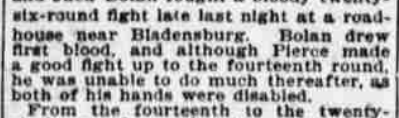

Scene from Bowen's Death.

Warrants were issued this morning for the arrest of the man who had been the cause of the tragedy. The man who had been the cause of the tragedy was now dead, and his body was being carried away to the morgue. The woman who had been the cause of the tragedy was now dead, and her body was being carried away to the morgue.

Scene from Bowen's Death.

The fight last night was to have been the second of a series of fights between Bowen and Lavigne. The man who had been the cause of the tragedy was now dead, and his body was being carried away to the morgue. The woman who had been the cause of the tragedy was now dead, and her body was being carried away to the morgue.

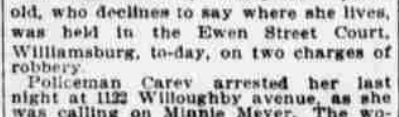

Scene from Bowen's Death.

Warrants were issued this morning for the arrest of the man who had been the cause of the tragedy. The man who had been the cause of the tragedy was now dead, and his body was being carried away to the morgue. The woman who had been the cause of the tragedy was now dead, and her body was being carried away to the morgue.

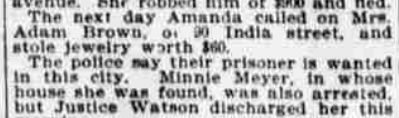

Scene from Bowen's Death.

The fight last night was to have been the second of a series of fights between Bowen and Lavigne. The man who had been the cause of the tragedy was now dead, and his body was being carried away to the morgue. The woman who had been the cause of the tragedy was now dead, and her body was being carried away to the morgue.

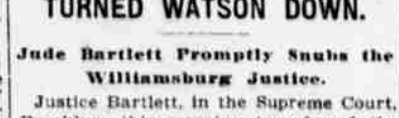

Scene from Bowen's Death.

Warrants were issued this morning for the arrest of the man who had been the cause of the tragedy. The man who had been the cause of the tragedy was now dead, and his body was being carried away to the morgue. The woman who had been the cause of the tragedy was now dead, and her body was being carried away to the morgue.

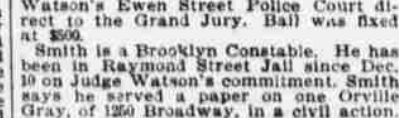

Scene from Bowen's Death.

The fight last night was to have been the second of a series of fights between Bowen and Lavigne. The man who had been the cause of the tragedy was now dead, and his body was being carried away to the morgue. The woman who had been the cause of the tragedy was now dead, and her body was being carried away to the morgue.

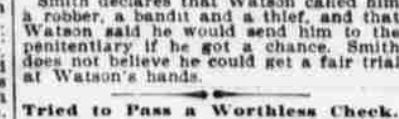

Scene from Bowen's Death.

Warrants were issued this morning for the arrest of the man who had been the cause of the tragedy. The man who had been the cause of the tragedy was now dead, and his body was being carried away to the morgue. The woman who had been the cause of the tragedy was now dead, and her body was being carried away to the morgue.

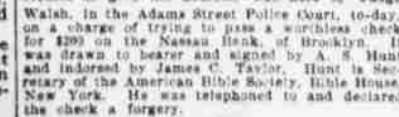

Scene from Bowen's Death.

The fight last night was to have been the second of a series of fights between Bowen and Lavigne. The man who had been the cause of the tragedy was now dead, and his body was being carried away to the morgue. The woman who had been the cause of the tragedy was now dead, and her body was being carried away to the morgue.

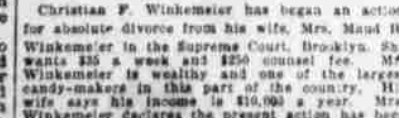

Scene from Bowen's Death.

Warrants were issued this morning for the arrest of the man who had been the cause of the tragedy. The man who had been the cause of the tragedy was now dead, and his body was being carried away to the morgue. The woman who had been the cause of the tragedy was now dead, and her body was being carried away to the morgue.

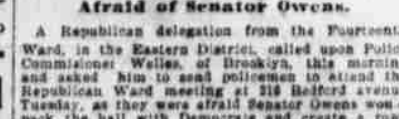

Scene from Bowen's Death.

The fight last night was to have been the second of a series of fights between Bowen and Lavigne. The man who had been the cause of the tragedy was now dead, and his body was being carried away to the morgue. The woman who had been the cause of the tragedy was now dead, and her body was being carried away to the morgue.

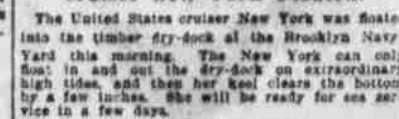

Scene from Bowen's Death.

Warrants were issued this morning for the arrest of the man who had been the cause of the tragedy. The man who had been the cause of the tragedy was now dead, and his body was being carried away to the morgue. The woman who had been the cause of the tragedy was now dead, and her body was being carried away to the morgue.

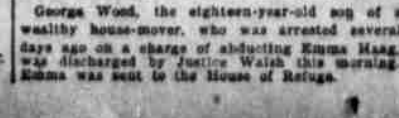

Scene from Bowen's Death.

The fight last night was to have been the second of a series of fights between Bowen and Lavigne. The man who had been the cause of the tragedy was now dead, and his body was being carried away to the morgue. The woman who had been the cause of the tragedy was now dead, and her body was being carried away to the morgue.

Scene from Bowen's Death.

Warrants were issued this morning for the arrest of the man who had been the cause of the tragedy. The man who had been the cause of the tragedy was now dead, and his body was being carried away to the morgue. The woman who had been the cause of the tragedy was now dead, and her body was being carried away to the morgue.

Scene from Bowen's Death.

HICKORY JIM DEAD.

Grief for His Deceased Master May Have Killed the Old Horse.

Hickory Jim, the horse, who raced more times than perhaps any thoroughbred in the world, is dead. Hickory Jim, who owned the horse for over twenty years, died in Hoboken on Nov. 23. The horse was then given to Dederick Haase, a feed dealer, at Van Bicklen Station, Coney Island. He died yesterday.

It is believed that the old horse died of a broken heart. Instances have been known of animals becoming so attached to their masters that upon the latter's death they worried and worried until death came.

This may have been the case with Hickory Jim. He and his master had been inseparable companions. They had travelled all over the country, and there is hardly a racing association whose books do not record the fact that at some time or other Hickory Jim won a purse for his master.

Even when the old horse's joints became stiff and he could no longer race, he was never in the contest. He was always with his master, and he was always with his master.

On Friday a week ago old Jim was taken to his stall. He was found dead. He was found dead. He was found dead.

During the trial of the Oakes divorce case, it was shown that on several occasions Mr. Knickerbocker, who owned the horse, had been seen with the horse. The horse was found dead.

Several persons connected with the case, who were present at the trial, knew nothing of the horse's death. The horse was found dead.

During the trial of the Oakes divorce case, it was shown that on several occasions Mr. Knickerbocker, who owned the horse, had been seen with the horse. The horse was found dead.

Several persons connected with the case, who were present at the trial, knew nothing of the horse's death. The horse was found dead.

During the trial of the Oakes divorce case, it was shown that on several occasions Mr. Knickerbocker, who owned the horse, had been seen with the horse. The horse was found dead.

Several persons connected with the case, who were present at the trial, knew nothing of the horse's death. The horse was found dead.

During the trial of the Oakes divorce case, it was shown that on several occasions Mr. Knickerbocker, who owned the horse, had been seen with the horse. The horse was found dead.

Several persons connected with the case, who were present at the trial, knew nothing of the horse's death. The horse was found dead.

During the trial of the Oakes divorce case, it was shown that on several occasions Mr. Knickerbocker, who owned the horse, had been seen with the horse. The horse was found dead.

Several persons connected with the case, who were present at the trial, knew nothing of the horse's death. The horse was found dead.

During the trial of the Oakes divorce case, it was shown that on several occasions Mr. Knickerbocker, who owned the horse, had been seen with the horse. The horse was found dead.

Several persons connected with the case, who were present at the trial, knew nothing of the horse's death. The horse was found dead.

During the trial of the Oakes divorce case, it was shown that on several occasions Mr. Knickerbocker, who owned the horse, had been seen with the horse. The horse was found dead.

Several persons connected with the case, who were present at the trial, knew nothing of the horse's death. The horse was found dead.

PREFERS DOG TO FAMILY.

Demar Drove His Wife and Children Out with Axe and Knife.

Antonio Demar, his wife Marie, and three children and an Irish setter, live together in apartments on the floor of a tenement, 82 West 11th St. Demar keeps a fruit stand at South Ferry, and throughout the day the dog is his only companion. His wife declares he thinks more of the dog than of his family.

About 8 o'clock last evening, Police Officer Smith, of the Elizabeth street station, found a crowd gathered about a house in front of her home. Her three children were clinging to her skirts and she was crying bitterly. She told the policeman that her husband had driven a dog from the house with an axe and a knife.

He came home with his dog and demanded that the dog be taken out of the house. He broke open the bureau with an axe and knife, and he drove her and the children from the house.

Demar told Justice Grady this morning that he had given his wife $25 last week. He did not know where she went with the money. He said that he had given his children $25 each, and he had given his dog $25.

Demar produced an undertaker's receipt bill to show that $25 of the money had been used for the funeral expenses. Mrs. Demar then asked permission to withdraw with the money, and she was given a check for $25.

Demar then asked permission to withdraw with the money, and she was given a check for $25. Demar then asked permission to withdraw with the money, and she was given a check for $25.

Demar then asked permission to withdraw with the money, and she was given a check for $25. Demar then asked permission to withdraw with the money, and she was given a check for $25.

Demar then asked permission to withdraw with the money, and she was given a check for $25. Demar then asked permission to withdraw with the money, and she was given a check for $25.

Demar then asked permission to withdraw with the money, and she was given a check for $25. Demar then asked permission to withdraw with the money, and she was given a check for $25.

Demar then asked permission to withdraw with the money, and she was given a check for $25. Demar then asked permission to withdraw with the money, and she was given a check for $25.

Demar then asked permission to withdraw with the money, and she was given a check for $25. Demar then asked permission to withdraw with the money, and she was given a check for $25.

Demar then asked permission to withdraw with the money, and she was given a check for $25. Demar then asked permission to withdraw with the money, and she was given a check for $25.

Demar then asked permission to withdraw with the money, and she was given a check for $25. Demar then asked permission to withdraw with the money, and she was given a check for $25.

Demar then asked permission to withdraw with the money, and she was given a check for $25. Demar then asked permission to withdraw with the money, and she was given a check for $25.

Demar then asked permission to withdraw with the money, and she was given a check for $25. Demar then asked permission to withdraw with the money, and she was given a check for $25.

Demar then asked permission to withdraw with the money, and she was given a check for $25. Demar then asked permission to withdraw with the money, and she was given a check for $25.

Demar then asked permission to withdraw with the money, and she was given a check for $25. Demar then asked permission to withdraw with the money, and she was given a check for $25.

Demar then asked permission to withdraw with the money, and she was given a check for $25. Demar then asked permission to withdraw with the money, and she was given a check for $25.

Demar then asked permission to withdraw with the money, and she was given a check for $25. Demar then asked permission to withdraw with the money, and she was given a check for $25.

SEELY'S CRIME AND LIGHT.

(Continued from First Page.)

It took a Saturday morning, when he bought a ticket for Harrisonburg, Va. He arrived at Harrisonburg about 2 o'clock in the afternoon. He was the only one on the ticket window, and he went up and got a ticket to Chicago.

"If I had a limited, which left New York at 9:15 the previous morning, and went through to Chicago with difficulty, I would have taken it."

Arriving in Chicago, Seely went straight to the Lanning Hotel, where he bought the newspaper from day to day to keep posted about his case. Not having a good night's sleep, he went to a rooming house and got a room for a few days. He said he made efforts to get a room, but he was unable to do so.

While he was coming out of a saloon one day, he met McFarland, who asked him how to get to the Roby race track. McFarland told him and then Seely asked him to take a drink with him. He said that he was a total stranger, said McFarland.

Seely explained that he felt blue and wanted company. He invited McFarland to go to the races with him. McFarland agreed to go, and they went to the races. McFarland told him that he was a good fellow, and that he had been in the police force for a long time.

At the races Seely and McFarland drank a great deal, and so did Seely. McFarland worked upon Seely's sympathy by telling him how much he loved his wife and family, and one cold day, after returning from the races, Seely took the fellow into his confidence.

"I can trust you, Mac, can't I?" said Seely. "Sure," answered McFarland. McFarland swore to be true.

"Well, I am Samuel C. Seely. You can give me away and get the reward, but I don't think you will. If there was a pile of gold higher than my head, I would not take it from you."

Seely then told McFarland out with a suit of clothes, and made him promise that he would stop drinking. McFarland professed a willingness to do so, and he took him to the Keeley cure institution in Chicago, where McFarland was a patient. Seely then told him that he was a total stranger, said McFarland.

Seely explained that he felt blue and wanted company. He invited McFarland to go to the races with him. McFarland agreed to go, and they went to the races. McFarland told him that he was a good fellow, and that he had been in the police force for a long time.

At the races Seely and McFarland drank a great deal, and so did Seely. McFarland worked upon Seely's sympathy by telling him how much he loved his wife and family, and one cold day, after returning from the races, Seely took the fellow into his confidence.

"I can trust you, Mac, can't I?" said Seely. "Sure," answered McFarland. McFarland swore to be true.

"Well, I am Samuel C. Seely. You can give me away and get the reward, but I don't think you will. If there was a pile of gold higher than my head, I would not take it from you."

Seely then told McFarland out with a suit of clothes, and made him promise that he would stop drinking. McFarland professed a willingness to do so, and he took him to the Keeley cure institution in Chicago, where McFarland was a patient. Seely then told him that he was a total stranger, said McFarland.

Seely explained that he felt blue and wanted company. He invited McFarland to go to the races with him. McFarland agreed to go, and they went to the races. McFarland told him that he was a good fellow, and that he had been in the police force for a long time.

At the races Seely and McFarland drank a great deal, and so did Seely. McFarland worked upon Seely's sympathy by telling him how much he loved his wife and family, and one cold day, after returning from the races, Seely took the fellow into his confidence.

"I can trust you, Mac, can't I?" said Seely. "Sure," answered McFarland. McFarland swore to be true.

"Well, I am Samuel C. Seely. You can give me away and get the reward, but I don't think you will. If there was a pile of gold higher than my head, I would not take it from you."

Seely then told McFarland out with a suit of clothes, and made him promise that he would stop drinking. McFarland professed a willingness to do so, and he took him to the Keeley cure institution in Chicago, where McFarland was a patient. Seely then told him that he was a total stranger, said McFarland.

TELEPHONE WEEDS RATES.

The Improved New York City Exchange Telephone Service, metallic circuit lines, long-distance equipment, is now offered by us at rates which bring it within reach of even the most moderate users. The prices per year are as follows:

Combination Line, - - $80.00
Direct Line, - - - - $120.00
AND UPWARDS, ACCORDING TO USE. NO EXTRA INSTALLATION CHARGE.

The Metropolitan Telephone and Telegraph Co.,
18 Cortlandt Street.

BRIAR PIPE GIVEN AWAY WITH EVERY ONE POUND OF DUKES MIXTURE

for 35 cents
Every pipe stamped
DUKES MIXTURE or

2oz Packages 5¢

CLOTHING?

$1.00 a Week.

CREDIT.

L. STERNBERG & CO.

Manufacturers.

NEWARK, 585 PATERSON, 230 Market St. FULTON ST., JERSEY CITY, Opp. Elm place, ELIZABETH, 30 Newark Av. BROOKLYN, 104 First St.

FREE OPTICAL ILLUSION.

MURRAY HILL LYCEUM.

A Most Intensely Interesting Lecture Course—Free to All.

THE RECEIVER SQUEALED.

THE BROOKLYN POLICE HAVE SOLVED THE MYSTERY OF ONE BURGLARY.

DEATH IN A TORNADO.

Alabama Has Another of Those Disastrous Wind Storms.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Dec. 15.—A special from Birmingham, Ala., says: News has reached here of a fatal tornado which swept over Little Valley, near Attalla. The dwelling of E. A. Gilland, County Commissioner of Etowah County, was wrecked, except the kitchen, where he and his wife and two children were. The house was blown off its foundation and the family was killed. The body of the woman was found in the wreckage. The man was found in the wreckage. The children were found in the wreckage.

SEELY'S CRIME AND LIGHT.

(Continued from First Page.)

It took a Saturday morning, when he bought a ticket for Harrisonburg, Va. He arrived at Harrisonburg about 2 o'clock in the afternoon. He was the only one on the ticket window, and he went up and got a ticket to Chicago.

"If I had a limited, which left New York at 9:15 the previous morning, and went through to Chicago with difficulty, I would have taken it."

Arriving in Chicago, Seely went straight to the Lanning Hotel, where he bought the newspaper from day to day to keep posted about his case. Not having a good night's sleep, he went to a rooming house and got a room for a few days. He said he made efforts to get a room, but he was unable to do so.

While he was coming out of a saloon one day, he met McFarland, who asked him how to get to the Roby race track. McFarland told him and then Seely asked him to take a drink with him. He said that he was a total stranger, said McFarland.

Seely explained that he felt blue and wanted company. He invited McFarland to go to the races with him. McFarland agreed to go, and they went to the races. McFarland told him that he was a good fellow, and that he had been in the police force for a long time.

At the races Seely and McFarland drank a great deal, and so did Seely. McFarland worked upon Seely's sympathy by telling him how much he loved his wife and family, and one cold day, after returning from the races, Seely took the fellow into his confidence.

"I can trust you, Mac, can't I?" said Seely. "Sure," answered McFarland. McFarland swore to be true.

"Well, I am Samuel C. Seely. You can give me away and get the reward, but I don't think you will. If there was a pile of gold higher than my head, I would not take it from you."

Seely then told McFarland out with a suit of clothes, and made him promise that he would stop drinking. McFarland professed a willingness to do so, and he took him to the Keeley cure institution in Chicago, where McFarland was a patient. Seely then told him that he was a total stranger, said McFarland.

Seely explained that he felt blue and wanted company. He invited McFarland to go to the races with him. McFarland agreed to go, and they went to the races. McFarland told him that he was a good fellow, and that he had been in the police force for a long time.

At the races Seely and McFarland drank a great deal, and so did Seely. McFarland worked upon Seely's sympathy by telling him how much he loved his wife and family, and one cold day, after returning from the races, Seely took the fellow into his confidence.

"I can trust you, Mac, can't I?" said Seely. "Sure," answered McFarland. McFarland swore to be true.

"Well, I am Samuel C. Seely. You can give me away and get the reward, but I don't think you will. If there was a pile of gold higher than my head, I would not take it from you."

Seely then told McFarland out with a suit of clothes, and made him promise that he would stop drinking. McFarland professed a willingness to do so, and he took him to the Keeley cure institution in Chicago, where McFarland was a patient. Seely then told him that he was a total stranger, said McFarland.

Seely explained that he felt blue and wanted company. He invited McFarland to go to the races with him. McFarland agreed to go, and they went to the races. McFarland told him that he was a good fellow, and that he had been in the police force for a long time.

At the races Seely and McFarland drank a great deal, and so did Seely. McFarland worked upon Seely's sympathy by telling him how much he loved his wife and family, and one cold day, after returning from the races, Seely took the fellow into his confidence.

"I can trust you, Mac, can't I?" said Seely. "Sure," answered McFarland. McFarland swore to be true.

"Well, I am Samuel C. Seely. You can give me away and get the reward, but I don't think you will. If there was a pile of gold higher than my head, I would not take it from you."

Seely then told McFarland out with a suit of clothes, and made him promise that he would stop drinking. McFarland professed a willingness to do so, and he took him to the Keeley cure institution in Chicago, where McFarland was a patient. Seely then told him that he was a total stranger, said McFarland.

SEELY'S CRIME AND LIGHT.

(Continued from First Page.)

It took a Saturday morning, when he bought a ticket for Harrisonburg, Va. He arrived at Harrisonburg about 2 o'clock in the afternoon. He was the only one on the ticket window, and he went up and got a ticket to Chicago.

"If I had a limited, which left New York at 9:15 the previous morning, and went through to Chicago with difficulty, I would have taken it."

Arriving in Chicago, Seely went straight to the Lanning Hotel, where he bought the newspaper from day to day to keep posted about his case. Not having a good night's sleep, he went to a rooming house and got a room for a few days. He said he made efforts to get a room, but he was unable to do so.

While he was coming out of a saloon one day, he met McFarland, who asked him how to get to the Roby race track. McFarland told him and then Seely asked him to take a drink